

SHOE FACTORY MAY COME HERE

Business Men Will Investigate G. E. Newman's Proposition.

HE ASKS NO BONUS

All the Local People Are Asked For is a Loan of $15,000.

IS A LARGE INDUSTRY

G. E. Newman, of Rochester, Ind., met the members of the Business Men's club at the Municipal court room last evening and submitted his proposition in regard to moving his shoe factory to this place.

He did not ask the citizens of Janesville for a bonus and did not ask them for a factory site or factory. But to loan him $15,000 on good security that would pay six per cent. on the loan.

He desires to enlarge his factory and is anxious to get into a town adjacent to the western shoe centers and larger than the one in which he is now located.

Janesville offers him these inducements. It is going to cost considerable money to make this move and it is for this reason that Mr. Newman is anxious to borrow the money.

Would Borrow Money

His proposition is that the company issue $15,000 of preferred stock drawing 6 per cent. interest, ten per cent. of this stock to be retired each year. The common stock will amount to $50,000, the preferred stock being secured by the common stock and the value of the plant which is about $45,000. The plant is to have a capacity of 1,000 pairs of shoes a day, and to employ within well under way, 200 hands. The subscription is not to be due until the factory is in running order and one hundred hands employed.

Meeting Held

The meeting was called to order by President Carle, who called on Michael Hayes to state the object of the meeting. Mr. Hayes made a brief statement and called on Mr. Newman, who stated his proposition and told what his factory was doing and why he would like to come to Janesville. He stated that Rochester was a small place and that he had an outlet for a great many more pairs of shoes than he could get help to manufacture in a place of this size.

The Dollar Shoe

He makes a shoe that is known the world over as the dollar shoe. It is made in three shapes and one grade. The making of this shoe in one particular style of last saves thousands of dollars to the manufacturer. This shoe is sold all over the country in large and small stores. The factory at present employs about one hundred and fifty hands and not over thirty per cent are girls. The men make as high as $20 per week and the boys earn $6 per week. Mr. Newman stated that he would bring forty families to Janesville before he had been running two months.

Should Investigate

President Carle stated to the members of the association present that he had talked with Mr. Newman in regard to his factory and the cost of the shoes that he made. Solz-Schwab now give him 92 1-2 cents per pair. The material costs 70 cents and the manufacture 20 cents leaving 2 1-2 cents profit, which with the discount on stock bought amounted to about six cents a pair. President Carle thought that the profit was so small that a committee should be appointed to investigate the stock question and see if the stock would cut the number of uppers that Newman claimed that it would. According to his notion this was the whole secret and unless this would pan out the factory would not be a success.

Norcross Talks

Captain Norcross was called upon and championed Mr. Newman's cause. He did not think that it made any difference whether he made 2 1-2 cents a pair or ten cents. The man's business capacity was the only thing to go by. He knew Gid Newman and knew his father before him and knew what Mr. Newman did to secure an education and that a man of that kind would succeed. Shoe factories were what Janesville wanted and he would like to see a dozen here. If Newman was willing to put up his $15,000 plant against $15,000 he was willing to subscribe for some of the stock.

Will Investigate

The question of the cost of the uppers was discussed at some length. To settle the matter the chair appointed a committee consisting of P. Norcross, D. W. Hayes and Sanford Soverhill to investigate the matter and report next Tuesday evening.

An Excellent Proposition
The proposition made by Mr. Newman appears to be a good one and may be accepted. He offers to bring a good business here and does not ask for a cent of bonus and does not ask for any money to be paid in stock subscriptions until he is running and employing at least 100 hands. It would appear he was in earnest and knew what his business was worth.

CAUCUS DATES ARE NOW FIXED

Leitch of Columbus, May Capture Congress from the Second District.

Madison, Wis., July 26.—(Special.)—The congressional and legislative caucus contests in the Second district are to be separated as much as possible, the congressional committee having late yesterday afternoon fixed the date for the convention for September 3, the day of the Democratic state convention, and the place as Portage. The Dane county members of the committee wanted a latter date, which would enable the congressional and legislative caucuses to be held at the same time, but the vote was a tie for some time, but a separation of the contests will probably be an advantage to both the Dane county congressional candidates, now in the field, Congressman Danie and H. C. Adams, C. E. Buell, who has been talked of as the administration candidate, has made no announcement as yet, and it is not believed he will enter the race. W. C. Leitch of Columbus will make a strong pull for Dane county votes, and it now looks as though the delegation would be split.

LIGHTNING PLAYS PECULIAR PRANKS

Smashes a House to Pieces, But Only Cuts Off a Man's Little Toe.

Beloit, Wis., July 26.—(Special.)—Frank Sheller, a carpenter, lost his little toe in a peculiar experience with a bolt of lightning last evening. Sheller was at work on the roof of a house when the severe electrical storm broke. He was struck by lightning, the bolt passing directly through his shoe and clipping off his little toe. Mr. Sheller was paralyzed from the shock for over two hours but today he is able to be around the house as usual.

After this queer freak the bolt passed through the house, completely demolishing the building and doing a great deal of damage. Mr. Sheller's escape from death is considered miraculous.

As she sank a second time, Josephine Kastner, forgetting that she could not swim, jumped overboard and grabbed her little playmate. The girls struggled in each other's arms for a few seconds and sank. Willie Kastner, the brother, was rescued by the villagers. The bodies of the girls were recovered.

Trusted Employee in a Beloit Clothing Store is Detected in His Crooked Career.

Beloit, Wis., July 26.—(Special.)—Jerome Annin, for the past twenty-three years, a trusted employee at the Golden Eagle clothing store, of which A. Loewi, is the proprietor, has been detected in the act of stealing goods from the store. While it is not known how long this has been going on it is thought that Annin has been systematically robbing his employer for a great many years and that his stealing amount to thousands of dollars.

His sister's house in Ripon was searched and part of the stolen goods found Annin has turned all his property over to Mr. Loewi and has made all the reparation that he is able to. He will not be prosecuted.

The discovery was a great shock to Annin's friends as he enjoyed the perfect confidence of his employer. His two children move in the best society and his family is universally held in high esteem. Burmeister of Dane county, Sheriff J. C. McKenzie of Columbia, and Chief of Police H. C. Baker of this city are among those who have been talked of.

The board will also have another vacancy to fill soon, as the resignation of C. P. His resignation will probably be to take effect about September 1, and his successor will probably not be chosen before the August meeting of the board.

WINKLER LETTER A TRUE POSER

Politicians, Business Men and All Classes Endorse Its Sentiments.

A DECIDED STAND

True Republican Sentiments by a Nestor of the G. O. P.

IT IS UNANSWERABLE

General Winkler's letter in answer to General Bryant's defense of the Republican platform declares what Republicanism means. It states in well-chosen, well-formed sentences what Republicanism should stand for and not what it at present does. It is unanswerable in its force and arguments. It tells naked truths in a way that has seldom been before attempted.

General Winkler is a scholar. He is a student and above all he is an irreproachable politician. No idea of personal gain or personal glory enters into the enthusiasm with which he tackles the difficult problems set before him. He does what he does for love of the party, for love of the cause for which he is fighting.

From one end of the state to the other General Winkler's letter has been read and approved by the thinking and the interested men of the party. It is a masterpiece of campaign document. It is a clear-cut, concise statement of facts set forth in a manner that brooks no dispute. It cannot be answered nor disputed by true Republicans. It is the doctrine of the Republican party set forth so that he who runs may read. The Gazette publishes the letter in full. It proves its sentiment and endorses them most heartily. The letter follows:

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23, 1902.—General George E. Bryant, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.—My Dear General Bryant: Although a reasonably old Republican myself, you are an older one and in the dilemma as to my personal status in which I find myself, I beg to turn to you for advice. "Since my first vote was cast no Republican candidate for President of the United States, and no Republican candidate for governor of Wisconsin (except once, when absence in the military service interfered) has failed to receive my vote.

"During all this time I have been ardently in favor of the general cause of the Republican party. But never have I supposed that being a republican deprived me of my right of private judgment, committed me to everything that the party did, or compelled me to subscribe to everything resolved in party platform. This has not been my judgment of the requisites of a consistent party man. My notion has been that one who approves its general aims and purposes, especially upon national subjects (for national policies are at the basis of our party organization), and supports it by his vote to be considered a member in good standing of the party.

Strait-Jacket Not a Party Tenet
verym anyetaadnsrdhptcaolnduhdrldu
"A platform generally contains very many things, and to say that every voter for the ticket impliedly affirms its every declaration and passes it to a stage where it may not thereafter be doubted or debated is as wild in theory as it is untrue in fact. Such, at least, has been my belief up to the present time. The strait-jacket theory of platform coercion and control upon every subject touched or passed upon has never presented itself to my understanding until during the last state convention.

"To me the question of adhesion to party, notwithstanding disapproval of platform, presented itself at my first vote. The great debate between Lincoln and Douglas had just convulsed the country and the cause of the Republican party, as expounded by its coming President, had woven itself into the very fibre of my soul.

When Minority Was Right.

"But I was in Wisconsin, and Wisconsin had added to the national Republican platform a feature of its own—the doctrine of state rights—the right of the state to judge for itself of the constitutionality and validity of an act of congress! This had been declared in state convention and reiterated in a joint resolution of a Republican legislature. Not, however, without dissent. A sober minority of the party, led by a great lawyer, the Hon. Timothy O. Howe, repudiated the fallacy. "These men did not leave the party. They were with it in its national cause—resistance to the encroachments of slavery. They supported their candidates. They were ever welcome to the councils of the party, although, with the pendency of logic of which Mr. Howe was a master, they laid bare what they deemed the unsoundness of the Wisconsin doctrine. It remains a satisfaction to me to the present day that, at the age of 21, I took my place with this minority.

When Party Begins Manhood Does Not End

CARRIE NATION SAYS IT'S TAME

THINKS JANESVILLE IS NOT A BAD TOWN AFTER ALL.

VISITS DIVES AND SALOONS

At Stillsons She Reads the Fight
Returns to an Appreciative Audience.

Carrie's rearing, tearing, rip snorting methods have been relegated to the misty past by a hard-headed prosaic manager and an unappreciative public. No more may she indulge in those little flights of fancy and sudden inspirations, which were her wont in the good old days to bring havoc and ruin to cut glass and polished mahogany fittings.

No more may she rage the streets bearing her trusty hatchet, well nipped with the scars of many a saloon battle.

Instead she goes out before a curious multitude to tell her little story and peddle her little hatchets of lead and tin at five and ten cents each. Only the shadow, the likeness in miniature of her former lawless glory is left to her. Of all else she has been despoiled by this cold-hearted world.

May Visit The Saloons.
True, Aunt Carrie may visit the saloons, but it is only as the exhorter, not as the rampant destroyer. In fact she pursued this course last night.

Reads Returns.
As a special dispensation, toward her Janesville admirers, the sturdy Kansas breeze went her usual performance one better, by taking the stand at Stillson's saloon to read the returns of the San Francisco prize fight to the eager crowd of listeners, who had gathered there.

Speaks in Park.
Arriving at the park, as soon as she had been assured of Leader Kniff's support in her plans, she mounted the band stand and gave her talk, speaking until she thought the listeners were ready for another musical number. This program was repeated several times, until she felt that she had told her hearers enough for the time. With the announcement of the fact that she had a supply of the famous hatchets at ten cents a piece, and some cheaper ones at five cents, she concluded her performance.

Rush For Stank.
It seemed doubtful for time whether the band stand could stand the assault made upon the throng that rushed for the little axes. But Carrie had been there before and coolly dealt out one after another of the little destructive implements from her seat on the stand.

Hit Everything.
Several remarks appealed quite strongly to her hearers. When describing her first raid on the Wichita saloons, she said that when she was ready to begin her work of destruction, she simply "threw" and she hit everything that she threw at.

Visits Saloon.
On her way to the hotel before preparing for the trip Carrie stopped for a moment's chat with Alex McLellan, at the Silver Moon. The place was instantly filled regardless of the remonstrance of the gentleman behind the bar, "Don't all come in at once, I'll be here tomorrow." At this Aunt Carrie decided that it was time to go, so with a last word to the bar tender she left. His farewell was "You're the first lady that ever came in here to call on me and I'm obliged to you for it," and he wrung her hand in a hearty farewell.

Her Star Appearance.
Her star appearance of the evening was at Stillson's which place she twice honored with her presence. The first time she retreated waving her handkerchief frantically waving her handkerchief in an effort to escape the clouds of smoke that enveloped her. Later she returned and was given the rostrum on a small table that was moved out into the center of the hall. Here she made a speech to the people and as bulletin after bulletin was handed to her from the fight she read them aloud to the eager listeners who had gathered to hear the returns.

Her Remarks.
A bulletins in her hands would read about like this, "Foley leads with left, but is short. Do you enjoy seeing human misery. Then you will enjoy this. Barry closes in and avoids right for body. Foley sends right over heart, you see he is trying to kill him, hitting him over the heart and escapes a return. Barry, trying to land, is again stopped by right on the body. He do like to hear this kind of thing? He sends left, et cetera."

Her Afternoon's Work.
Carrie came, rode to Athletic park in the street car, talked to a small handful of men and women and a larger number of small boys, sold some hatchets, attempted to reform a bartender, and then retired to the the Cornau house to eat a vegetarian supper. Such is the record of the Kansas cyclone for Friday afternoon.

At about four o'clock she made her way to the street car that was in waiting at the Myers house corner. On the car she held her first reception, and she probably would have addressed a larger audience there than at the base ball park if it had been her rostrum. It took but a short time for a large number to congregate about the car where she was seated.

Lawyers Start the Fun.
T. S. Nolan and Wilson Lane began the fun. Mr. Lane approached the window and with great solemnity introduced to Mrs. Nation "Mr. Nolan, who used to be a saloon keeper." Carrie was deeply interested and was profuse in her congratulations when she learned that Mr. Nolan had forsaken the paths of evil. Mr. Nolan, then, not to be outdone, presented to the whirlwind from the West, "Mr. Lane, a drinker, who still owes me a bar bill from the time when I kept a saloon."

Hello, Pete!
By this time the crowd extended from the car to the sidewalk, and these two gentlemen looking around in search of more of the unregenerate, saw in the outskirts of the crowd, P. J. Mount. They immediately informed Carrie of the fact, that "Pete Mount" was one of the hardest characters around the town, at which she lifted her voice and shouted, "Hello Pete, come here." But the plea was useless. Mr. Mount retained his place on the sidewalk.

A Small Crowd.
The car soon started and the audience was broken up. At the grounds hardly a third of the grand stand was filled and more than half of that number were boys who had come in under the fence. Her talk was wholly prohibition. She soundly berated all other parties as under the control of the liquor dealers, and apostrophized the Prohibition party, as the party that had stood for the sentiment "Slavery Must Go" and was now urging with equal force, "The Saloon Must Go."

Told the Audience.
In talking of herself Carrie said "I feel like I was just something that the Lord picked up and threw at the saloons." "Throughout her address she disclaimed any personal virtue or power, but she was ready to admit that she had done great things with the Lord's help.

Quotes the Bible.
She referred to her cyclone methods by quoting the instance of the Lord's command to Moses to destroy the altars, to break the images and cut down the groves, of the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Hittite, and the Jebusite. "Don't you reckon there was some smashing then?" she concluded.

For the sake of the small boy she recited a little poem which pictured with great vividness these men all around who do nothing but "smoke, and smoke, and smoke, and smoke."

The story was carried on through a long series of stanzas to the point where this man reaches the world hereafter, where he still does nothing but nothing but "smoke, and smoke, and smoke, and smoke."

Her only attempt at violence up to this time had been on the street car on the way out when she approached a man who was smoking in the car and asked him if such a practice was allowed in the street cars of Janesville. On receiving an affirmative answer she returned to her seat.

Visits a Saloon.
Leaving the car on her return from the Athletic park, she made her way down Main street toward the Cornau. On the way she stopped at the "Elk" and entered into a conversation with the bar tender in the hope of inducing him to quit the business. The saloon was immediately filled with onlookers who were ready for an exhibition of her hurricane powers. Instead of that she left the building almost immediately. She gave as her explanation of this that she had intended to go farther but she saw that it was only helping out the saloon keeper's business. Men were coming in there and drinking to show her that they were smart when otherwise they would not have tasted the liquor.

Is a Vegetarian.
She next made her way to the hotel after stopping at a grocery store to purchase a quart of berries and a half dozen bananas. Mrs. Nation eats no meat and drinks neither tea nor coffee.

TRINITY BOYS BREAK CAMP

RETURN TO CITY BROWN AS BERRIES

A WET WEATHER TRIP

Spend Two Weeks' Recreation in Nature's Wonder-land.

Sunday morning the Trinity church choir boys resume their wonted position in the musical services of that church after a vacation of two weeks. For fourteen days the boys lived the life of the primeval savage, close to nature's heart. No sounds of the busy strife of the city disturbed their days; free from all restrictions they roamed the woods and fields.

Boys Returned.
Now all this is over. Last Wednesday Harry Ranous, with a pensive sigh of relief, brought back to Janesville everyone of the twenty-four young barbarians whom he had accompanied as guard and guide on their annual season of recreation. The skins of all were several shades nearer the hue of the early American savage, but despite this and although they reported no imminent danger of drought in the locality in which they were located, they expressed themselves well-satisfied with pressed themselves as well satisfied with their vacation.

Evansville in Camp.
The tents which were occupied by the choir boys were left where they were pitched on the McGee place, about four miles up the river and were occupied as soon as they were vacated by the Janesville lads, by the choir boys from St. John's church of Evansville, under the care of the Rev. Clark Wilson. They will camp there for one week.

Rather Damp.
Throughout the heavy rains which beset the campers during their two weeks' stay the tents remained dry, and no great discomfort was experienced, although the weather was not the most desirable for out-door life. Almost every day some of the members of the party returned to the city for a few hours and on one several returned to stay before the camp as a whole broke up.

The Chaperones.
Besides Harry Ranous, the grown-ups who were in charge of the party were Mrs. S. O. Curtis, Miss Lillie Allen, Mr. P. E. Johnson and Mrs. Elmer Reynolds.

BOATS ARE USED TO REACH FARMS

Large Sections of Country Are Under Water, and Rivers Become Big Lakes.

Dr. James Mills has returned home from a western business trip and he has seen something of the immense amount of damage that has been done by the heavy rains and floods of this season. Thousands of acres of crops in Illinois and west of the Mississippi river, especially in Iowa. It is no uncommon thing to see farmers going about their farms in boats and the people of Wisconsin have no idea of the extent of the floods and the damage done.

A Wonderful Sight.
The Illinois river is a wonderful sight. For twenty-five or thirty miles the river has overflowed its banks from half of a mile to a mile and it looks like a great lake. Rock river is also like an immense lake where it empties into the Mississippi, having overflowed the country for miles.

Bridge Is Down.
Iron railway bridges and tracks have been washed away in many places, one iron bridge one hundred feet long being swept out like so much lumber. This bridge was just south of Joliet. The entire flooded district has a strange and desolated appearance.

Ball Game.
Thursday afternoon the Clinton baseball nine defeated the Milwaukee Journals in a closely contested game at Clinton by a score of 3 to 0, all three of the runs being made in the sixth inning. In none of the other innings was either team able to score. The game was a pitcher's battle royal from start to finish and the honors were pretty evenly divided. Young and Poye were the battery for Clinton and Kell and Warza played the points for the Milwaukee Journals. It was one of the best games ever seen on the Clinton grounds and the enthusiasm ran high among the spectators.

Horace White Sees LaFollette.
New York Evening Post, Ind.: A public man could not ask a more general and hearty endorsement than the action of the Wisconsin Republican convention last week has evoked from the press of the country. The dominant LaFollette faction in the party evidently intended to snub the senator because he has not been an admirer of the governor, and their purpose obviously was to provoke him into refusing to accept a re-election by making the terms of his candidacy odious. But this treatment of the state's best known man has provoked such indignant censure from the Republican newspapers in all parts of the nation that even a man of LaFollette's egotism must see that he has gone too far in insisting that everything shall pay court to him.

A Chinese Clarinet.
The sona, a Chinese clarinet, is the favorite instrument among the common people, especially at marriage or funeral entertainments. Its scale is from F to G above.

Made Music in Olden Times.
The rabab of Palestine is a sort of violin. The body is a square frame covered with parchment. The instrument is played with a bow. There is but one string, a thick, coarse horse-hair, but expert performers can, it is said, get considerable variety of tone from this primitive instrument.

Ingenuity of the Spider.
A Texas spider weaves a balloon four feet long and two feet wide, which she fastens to a tree by a single thread, then marches on board with her half dozen little ones, cuts the thread, and away goes the airship to some distant point on the prairie.

JEFFRIES WINS
IN EIGHT ROUNDS

FITZ PUT UP A STRONG FIGHT

Boilermaker's Victory Comes After a Hard Contest During Which He Suffers Severe Punishment, Bleeding Freely.

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—With a stab to the heart region that carried with it all the force of his mountain-bred strength and his inborn ferocity James J. Jeffries successfully defended his title of champion heavyweight fighter of the world. It came out like a flash in the eighth round and the luckless Fitzsimmons fell groaning to the canvas-covered ring floor.

The aged warrior from far-away Australia had cut the young Californian almost into ribbons up to the eighth round. He had slashed away with a variety of left hooks, right stabs, cross-counters, upper cuts, jabs, swings—everything that was ever heard of in the fighting world. And they fell on the massive mountain boy's front like the pattering of a summer shower. They hurt and came so fast they were bewildering to the giant champion.

But he smiled grimly through the blood and with head down and growling at times like the grizzly bear he resembles he went back to the firing line, each time with renewed energy.

Fitz Seeks Quick Action.
Fitzsimmons went as far as he could. Knowing down in his heart that to win at all he must win quickly, he went right at the ponderous bulk in front of him. Right at the start he got a smash into the big man's face that sent the blood flying in a shower about the ring. After that the blood flowed freely from the big man, but he kept getting stronger and stronger under the punishment, while the other man was fighting himself out trying to get in a decisive blow.

The end came in the eighth round. Battered and pulpy with the punches he had stopped with every part of his fighting front, Jeffries faced the game old man who stepped out of the other corner. He saw glove after glove with a brawny, bony blacksmith's fist inside of it hurled at him. He was not fast enough, fast as he is, to get out of the way of them. He had to take the punching. He growled and growled and his breath came fast as effort after effort of his was wasted. He could not get in a punch on Fitzsimmons. He tried all he knew. Every trick was exhausted by the ancient one. He went for the body and went for the jaw. It was no use. He could not catch him right as he did one night over three years ago at Coney Island when he put him down for the final count.

Fitz Grows Too Confident.
Fitzsimmons himself was beginning to take on great activity when he realized that he was master of the champion. He saw before him a realization of his fondest dream—a resumption of the sweets and riches that come with the championship title.

He must have fallen asleep with the sweet picture. Jeffries had no such thought. The mountain grizzly was aroused. Stung to the quick and nettled beyond endurance by the taunting cheers of that part of the crowd that had bet on the short end, he threw every effort into the fight. Smash, smash went the big fists at Fitzsimmons. The thoughts of the older man were elsewhere. For the moment he must have forgotten his skill. Just once the mighty guard he had used with such skill went wrong. It went up a little too high and under the steel-like forearm of the blacksmith went the triphammer punch of the boilermaker.

Complete and Fair Knockdown.
The blow went home. It was a left half swing. It did not travel far, but it had every ounce of the great 220 pounds of bulk behind it. It caught Fitzsimmons fairly over the heart. Jeffries fell into his victim with the force of it. When he straightened up to recover himself there was nobody in front of him. Fitzsimmons had been knocked completely off his feet.

Bob fell slowly, but at full length. It was a complete and fair knock down. For an instant—it all had happened so fast—Referee Graneley hesitated. An instant's stillness and then the great arena broke into a wild yell of rage and joy, about equally mixed. Graneley started to count. He counted pretty fast. It seemed to the Fitzsimmons men. The fallen fighter struggled to get up. He raised his head, then got an arm under and raised his body. The seconds flew by and at the fatal "ten" Fitzsimmons was still on the floor.

Thus in a tragic ten seconds had ended his fighting days.

ANTI-FRIAR RIOTS
FEARED IN MANILA

Philippine Commission is Advised That Monster Preparation is Making.

Manila, July 26.—The Philippine commission and the municipal authorities have received a number of communications advising them that preparations are making for monster anti-friar demonstrations, to take place in Manila. Fears are expressed that trouble will result from the political effect of the speeches that will be delivered at the theater, while the procession of floats is crowded within the walled city, where the majority of the churches are situated, and while the people are shouting for the expulsion of the friars.

La Libertas, the organ of the friars, published an open letter appealing to Acting Governor Wright to protect the religious corporations. The police are making all preparations to prevent disturbances.

TRADE TEMPER
REMAINS GOOD

RAILWAYS ARE AT HIGH MARK

Gain of 25 Per Cent Thus Far for July Compared With Record of Last Year—Footwear Shows Great Activity.

New York, July 26.—"Each day brings the agricultural products of the nation nearer maturity, and as the possibility of any serious injury becomes smaller the feeling of confidence in fully sustained trade grows stronger. Storms destroyed much property in some sections, and the prompt restoration of the structures has added to the activity of building trades. Railway stocks rose to new high record quotations and gold was exported, yet money ruled easy. July oats succeeded corn as the leading speculative cereal, but all distant grain options tended lower as the outlook improved. The heavy distribution of merchandise is shown by railway earnings thus far reported for July 25 per cent larger than last year and 20 per cent in excess of the corresponding period of 1900." R. G. Dunn & Co.'s weekly review thus sums up the trade outlook and continuing, says:

Coal Shortage is Felt.

"Insufficient fuel is the one serious difficulty in the iron and steel industry, interruptions and delays from this cause becoming more noticeable each day. Supplies of coal are curtailed by the strike, although coke ovens are making new records of production. Shipments are retarded by the car and motive power shortage. All forms of pig iron have sold ahead, and there is no evidence of over production, in the near future at least.

"A new week has brought out more liberal orders for railway supplies, and the structural mills have taken contracts dating still further into next year. Makers of agricultural machinery and tools grow more confident as the season advances, and all lines of finished steel are in an exceptionally fine condition.

Activity in Footwear.

"Footwear factories have returned to almost full operation, contracts coming forward freely from wholesalers at the large cities.

"Aside from moderate buying for Red Sea ports there has been little trade in the export division of the cotton goods market. Domestic purchases are confined to immediate requirements as a rule, the finer grades alone being ordered in advance. "There was less activity in the speculative markets for the leading cereals, yet prices were fairly well maintained. Meats were somewhat weaker on large receipts and smaller export buying. Among the other staples coffee continues active and firm, despite the statistical situation, while cotton was irregular, because improved crop prospects acted in opposition to the brisk demand for consumption. Finally the former influence prevailed, and quotations declined sharply.

"Failures for the week numbered 208 in the United States, against 193 last year, and seventeen in Canada, against twenty-eight last year."

RECORD IN QUICK PUNISHMENT

Minneapolis Man Convicted and in Cell an Hour After Crime.

Minneapolis, July 26.—Justice records were broken Friday when a man was arrested, tried, convicted and lodged in his place of imprisonment in exactly fifty minutes after committing a theft. Frank Dickinson stole a coat. Patrolman John O'Connor arrested him and hurried the prisoner with the stolen garment into the municipal court. Ten minutes later Dickinson was on his way to the workhouse under sentence to serve three months, and in less than an hour after the theft was committed he had been enrolled and assigned to a prison squad.

MOTHERS MUST GUIDE

Should Watch the Physical Development of Their Daughters. Earnest Words From Mrs. Pinkham to Mothers.

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

The following letters from Mrs. Southard are practical proof of Mrs. Pinkham's efficient advice to young women.

Mothers Who Allow Their Daughters to Suffer are Cruel When Relief is Easily Obtained. Read This Mother's Experience.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish advice in regard to my daughter. She is thirteen years old and never menstruated. We have had the doctor to her and he said she did not have enough blood. She has been taking iron for three months but is no better. In the morning she vomits, some days she cannot keep anything on her stomach until twelve o'clock. If she tries to do anything she gets faint. Has headache all the time, is as white as marble with great dark rings under her eyes. Please write and tell me what to do as I am discouraged with the doctor."—Mrs. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phoenix Mills, N.Y. (Jan. 10, 1900.)

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last January I wrote you about my daughter, and told you what our family doctor said about her. I saw another doctor, and he said she had quick consumption. After receiving your letter, I began giving her your remedies, and after taking four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and four of Blood Purifier, she is now well and strong as ever. Menstrues have appeared and are regular. I can never praise your remedies enough for they saved my daughter's life."—Mrs. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phoenix Mills, N.Y. (Dec. 16, 1900.)

Any young girl or any mother is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice in regard to her sickness. No one has had greater experience or success in guiding mothers and their daughters to health. Thousands have trusted her and are glad. She charges nothing for advice. Write to-day.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

LACK OF APPRECIATION.

Some one has said that politics is destitute of both sentiment and honor. The statement is true, so far as sentiment is concerned and honor is too frequently lacking. Both are necessary to a sense of appreciation.

The action of the Republican convention in dealing with Senator Spooner, and Superintendent Harvey, is a fair sample of cold blooded politics as it is usually administered, and while always disgusting, it is seldom disappointing, for men in political life expect almost any kind of treatment.

The question of appreciation is not a part of the political dialogue. If it were, the effort to sacrifice these two faithful public servants would not have been made.

That parties should be ungrateful is not at all surprising, for ambitious candidates are constantly appearing, and selfishness, always characterizes political ambition. Half a dozen men aspire to Senator Spooner's place in the senate. It is safe to say that every last one of them believes that he can fill the responsible position as well or better than the senior senator. The same was true of Mr. Harvey.

That is sublime egotism; an element seldom lacking in men who aspire to office. Statesmen and educators are born and not manufactured to order. The two men under discussion, belong to this class. The number in both departments is limited. Senator Spooner is recognized as one of the very few leading statesmen of the day, and Mr. Harvey has but few rivals as a practical educator.

The services of these men was a blessing to the people and yet the party that they honored, showed a total lack of appreciation. Where these conditions prevail, there is something radically wrong in the system and an effort should be made to remedy it.

This lack of appreciation, which is so apparent in political life, is not confined to parties, but is evidenced in society, in business, in the church and all too frequently in the home.

Politics is cold blooded and society is troubled with the same disposition. The former is designing, the latter indifferent. The survival of the strong is the rule in either case, and the vacancy caused by removal, causes but little commotion.

It matters not how royally the man or woman have been entertained, or how lavishly have been expenditures, when misfortune comes and supplies are exhausted, appreciation is forgotten, and society turns a cold shoulder.

Political ambition is usually inspired by a desire for fame or position, while back of social ambition, is frequently nothing higher than an effort to keep up with the procession. Money sets the pace and the peace of many homes, and the prosperity of many young men, is sacrificed, in a vain effort to keep step to the rapid music.

There are thousands of young people with flattering prospects, ruined every year, because they lack the courage to go a little slower. The young man holding a position of trust and responsibility, who lives up to his income, and never has a dollar ahead will discover sooner or later that the business world has little use for him, except in a subordinate position, and he will also awaken to the fact that society not only fails to appreciate, but is ready to drop him on the slightest provocation.

"Business is business" is an old maxim, that covers a multitude of sins. A man may be perfectly honest in all his dealings, yet totally destitute of appreciation.

It requires more than honesty to develop well rounded character and appreciation is among the necessary qualifications. Men who have won success through their own efforts are proud of the fact that they are self made men, and their children are frequently reminded, that life fifty years ago was neither a dream nor a holiday. While this class of men are to be commended, yet it is well to remember that every man who wins in the struggle of life, is under obligations to influences outside of himself.

The great brotherhood of humanity is of broad significance and in its complex relations, men are touched at every point. The man of today, who boasts of his independence, is the boy of yesterday. His sturdy character dates back to a home where character was moulded and safeguarded. Opportunities came to him in his young manhood, because of this home. Mistakes were condoned and effort encouraged because men had confidence in his ability to develop manhood. He made himself, but all along the pathway helping hands were stretched out and kindly admonition guided. All these may be forgotten and the sense of appreciation entirely destroyed. He may be as cold and unresponsive as a frog, but that does not change conditions. It simply emphasizes the fact that the business as well as the political world is supremely selfish.

Better things are expected in the church, but expectations are not always realized. The church is supposed to represent the best there is in both society and business. While the people connected with it are just as mortal as those outside the fold, yet more is expected of them.

The one great weakness that confronts the church today, is lack of personal responsibility, as well as lack of appreciation. The average church society is represented by a handful of active workers and they are more frequently criticised than commended. The financial burdens of the church are usually borne by the few, while the great majority shirk responsibility.

Moral as well as financial support is often withheld and if the preacher is unpopular, or the music off color, criticism is freely offered. The church, of whatever creed, deserves better treatment. It is the world's great moral agency, and every man and woman connected with it, as well as every spectator is under obligation to it.

The home, more sacred than the church, is the closest corporation in existence. It should not only be filled with love, but it should be crowned with thoughtful appreciation, and this appreciation should be expressed in words, as well as deeds.

Some one said recently, in speaking of a father, "He thinks the world of his daughter, but he wouldn't tell her so for money." That sentence tells the story of too many homes.

The man may be a good provider. He ought to be. But he can't afford to be so absorbed in business as to neglect the little courtesies that mean so much in the home. The wife needs more than board and wardrobe, and the children have but a one-sided education, if left entirely to the teacher.

The sentiment that prompts a word of love and appreciation in the home is a lofty sentiment and nothing to be ashamed of. When this fact is more generally recognized, there will be less selfishness in business and politics and more genuine piety in the church, because, the home makes the man.

THE NORTHWESTERN ROAD

The Chicago & Northwestern road has been the subject of a great deal of adverse criticism, during the past few days, and all because the company is attempting to handle its business economically, the same as an individual will do.

Janesville appears to be unfortunate in not being located at Fond du Lac. The company has discovered in the development of its business, that the latter city is a natural division headquarters. In order to make it available, it became necessary to have men to handle the train service. There is no trouble about men, it was simply a question as where they should be procured. Some of the Janesville crews were offered the new runs and this seems to have created a commotion.

A railroad employee is usually a creature of circumstances and he usually plans to adapt himself to his surroundings. It is not always possible for him to have a permanent home, as the company is not able to take into account the personal wishes of individual employees. The changes that are constantly being made in train service, are incidental to development and increased business and demands are met in a business like way. To say that these changes are designed to favor one locality at the expense of another, is the height of nonsense and to talk about a boycott is boys' play of pronounced type.

The Northwestern road is a great corporation. It handles business intelligently and is recognized as one of the best managed roads in the country.

It has no spite against Janesville, or any other town where it seeks business. The road has always shown a disposition to co-operate with the city and was never more willing to do so than today. There is no money in fighting a railroad and but very little glory. The company will continue to employ a good force of men in Janesville and the pay roll will not be diminished.

CHAIRMAN BRYANT'S APOLOGY.

For the first time in the history of the party, the chairman of the Republican State Central Committee has found it necessary to apologize for a party platform. The party is humiliated, by being compelled to go before the people with a declaration that fails to inspire confidence in the men responsible for it.

The plank referring to Senator Spooner, is so cold blooded and un-republican, that it has aroused a tide of indignation in all parts of the country and many men who supported it, are asking themselves the question, "How was I hypnotized?"

The platform is not only a monstrosity, but it attempted to drive out of the party all men who failed to endorse it. The effort failed, as well it might, for the minority in the convention represented the Republicanism of the state.

Fads are always short-lived and LaFolletteism will have its day. The state has never peacefully submitted to the will of a dictator and it never will. A party that attempts to blind its members by an oath of allegiance, has drifted from its moorings and while it may masquerade under the guise of Republicanism, it is destitute of everything that pertains to it, but the name.

The chairman of the State Central Committee, will have plenty of time for apologies and consideration. He will find it necessary to take a day off to reply to Gen. Winkler.

THE CITY HALL CLOCK

The city owns a clock. Why shouldn't it on a $60,000 building? The clock don't strike. It wasn't built that way, but it has an illuminated dial and the time can be easily discovered any evening by strolling over to the side street where the clock is located.

Just why the striker was left off is not explained. Strikers cost money, but electric dials are not expensive. About the only place that the clock can be used to advantage is in timing funeral processions. It will be worth something to know how long it takes to make a trip to the cemetery, but the illuminated dial will be useless, unless the people can be educated to having their funerals in the evening. The city hall would be incomplete without a $225 corner stone and a clock.

PRESS COMMENT

Marquette Eagle: The summer girl is at her best now—so the boys say.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Gov. LaFollette is said to be preparing some political soothing syrup for his young supporters who are inclined to quarrel with one another.

Eau Claire Telegram: A Chicago paper says that LaFollette is in line for the presidency. A Milwaukee railroad man sees Mayor Rose in that place. Wisconsin seems to be in it, either way.

Milwaukee Journal: Racine, which sent a LaFollette delegation to Madison, spoke on Saturday in a loud voice for Spooner. There is no doubt whatever as to whom the Republicans of Wisconsin want to represent them in the United States senate.

Milwaukee Journal: It is impossible that Postmaster General Henry C. Payne will find the accumulated business of the department a gratifying relief from the continued round of pleasure which he has been going through since he returned to Wisconsin on his vacation.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The thing to be done, then, is simply to insist that every Republican candidate for nomination for either the assembly or the senate declare himself unconditionally for the reelection of Senator Spooner. It is not enough for one to say he is for Spooner, he must be for him unconditionally.

Marquette Star: Don't take on, brethren! If the conditions imposed prevent Senator Spooner's return to the senate, try to brace up under the cheering thought that even the retirement and subsequent demise of "The Father of his country," did not retard the country's progress as much as you fear the loss of Spooner may do.

Green Bay Gazette: Some good kind friend of Governor LaFollette should take The Milwaukee Free Press man to one side and gently explain to him that the less said concerning the action of the state convention in regard to Senator Spooner the better it will be for the Republican ticket this fall. The sort of argument being used by The Free Press is making things no better fast.

Adelaide King, in Milwaukee Sentinel: The question of Smith vs. Johnson, which shall prevail as shown in the city directories, is agitating Chicago and New York. In Chicago the Johnsons are in the lead and in New York the Smiths. The Milwaukee directory shows three pages of Johnsons to four of Smiths, and as an additional cinch there are five pages of Schmidts.

SPOONER COMMENTS.

Racine Leader: The motif is the thing to judge by and the motif all prevailing the proceedings of the convention was any old thing that would do to string up John C. Spooner. It is idle to argue it was proper to insert provisions by which guarantees would be given by one who never yet has been asked for any other guarantee than his magnificent record of straight out Republicanism.

Republican and Leader: The comment of the press all over the state indicates that the sentiment of the people is favorable for the return to the senate, whether he accepts the conditions or not, and it is probable that he will make his campaign in the assembly districts and keep silent on the platform demands.

Racine Journal: But the intent of the people of Wisconsin is to see that John C. Spooner is re-elected to the United States senate.

Appleton Post: The game is not played out yet by a long ways and until then Senator Spooner is in a position to "stand pat," just as he has been doing so far.

Free Press: No man ever went into the United States senate with less opposition from his own party than John C. Spooner can go back to it if he wishes to go.

Fairly Warned.

A political speaker accused a rival of "unfathomable meanness," and then rising to the occasion, said: "I warn him not to persist in his disgraceful course, or he'll find that two of us can play at that game!"

TO TALK SOCIAL DEMOCRAT PARTY

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY WILL MEET IN CONCLAVE.

BIG SPEAKERS ARE EXPECTED

Aim is to 'Work Up' Enthusiasm for the Coming Fall Campaign.

One hundred and fifty residents of Jansville, mainly laboring men, have been invited to meet this evening to hold a conference with Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, and 'Winfield R. Gaylord, of New London, in regard to the advancement of the Social-Democratic party. These two representatives look for a season of prominence for their socialistic party in the coming campaign and are now canvassing the state to attend to some of the preliminary work of the campaign. Mr. Berger is a member of the central committee of the state. The gentlemen believe that the party which is of four years' growth, and has had a small coterie of supporters in this place, has a period of special prominence before it, although they have expressed no desire to make any great public demonstrations. Their work has thus far been carried on slowly and unassumingly and the time has not yet come, when it would be advisable to come out with too much assertion.

The Social-Democrats will, however, have both county and state tickets in the field for the fall campaign, and the work of canvassing the state will be carried on as energetically as possible with the limited means at the command of the party. The party is distinctive in having practically no rich men among them.

The canvassing in the state is to be carried on in the main by the means of literature as the most effective for the money invested. There will, however, at the same time be speakers who will go through the state and carry on their campaign addresses that the other political parties do. Among the speakers whom these gentlemen promise will be sent to this city are H. Gaylord Washburn, the only millionaire of whom the party boasts. Mr. Washburn is the publisher of Washburn's magazine of Toronto, Canada, which was at one time excluded from the mails on account of its socialistic tendencies. Another speaker will be Seymour Steadman of Chicago. It is also possible that some women may be on the list of speakers assigned to Jansville.

The gentlemen express great hope for the immediate future of their party in the fact that the recent beef, steel and coal trust agitations have brought the evils of the trust directly before the people in a way that could not have been attained by years of talking. The Social-Democratic party hopes to attain to governmental power by bringing these facts and several others bearing on the general question and to awaken renewed interest among the socialists in this city that these men are here and will meet in a conference with about 150 of their sympathizers.

SPLENDID PLAY AT THE MYERS GRAND

Dramatization of "Thelma" is Presented by Able Company, and is Well Staged.

After having been closed for several weeks the Myers Grand was again thrown open to the amusement lovers last evening and a fair sized audience saw an excellent presentation of the dramatization of Marie Corelli's famous novel, "Thelma." The play is a strong one, some of the scenes being strikingly original. The scenery was fine and the presenting company, one of Alden Benedicts, was a capable one, all of the parts being well taken. The audience was thoroughly pleased with the performance.

The Merchants' Excursion
The groceryman's excursion to Milwaukee will be held on Aug. 7, and not on the fifth or sixth as stated last night. On account of other excursions the dates first selected were abandoned and the seventh taken. This will be one of the largest excursions of the season.

Cages Coming: The cages for the women's department in the lock-up at the new city hall will be placed in position the first of next week. The chief will have quite comfortable quarters when he gets into the new building.

Lease Fight: The case of William H. Tallman et al against Dr. F. B. Farnsworth was heard in the municipal court. The action is brought to settle a dispute about a lease.

New Golf Club: F. M. Marzuff is exhibiting a sample of a patent golf club in which he is interested. The club looks like the ordinary club but has a steel spring wire running through the shaft which it is claimed gives the club more distance and makes the shaft practically indestructible. The club is being tried by the members of the Mississippi club to test its merits.

On Thursday the Y. M. C. A. baseball team was defeated by the Broadhead team by a score of eight to three in a game played at Broadhead. It was by better ball throughout that the Broadhead victory was won. A lead was gained on the locals during the first three innings that could not be made up. Costly fumbles on the part of the association men and a number of safe hits by their opponents added to the success of the winning team. The batteries were Palmer, Fisher and Palmer for Jansville, against Fairman and Freeman for Broadhead.

Trading Stamp Concern Merged
Yesterday's Milwaukee Sentinel contains the following article:

The Milwaukee Trading association, an old concern in Milwaukee, has recently been consolidated with the following trading stamp concerns:

Chicago Trading association, St. Louis Trading association, Denver Trading association and the New York Trading association. Mr. Gannon, who is in Milwaukee at present, representing the new corporation, has rented large new quarters at 416 East Water street, where mechanics are at work getting it ready for their opening on Saturday.

The new concern is incorporated for $500,000. The Milwaukee store will carry a large stock, about $8,000. The Jansville branch will be enlarged and a number of new patterns in fine goods added and the grade of all goods will be better than ever before.

An Active Minister.
In his recent address before the Daughters of the Revolution, John Howland Crandall told of many quaint customs of colonial times that are not generally known. He said it was the practice in the good old days for afflicted families to give a pair of gloves to the clergyman who officiated at a funeral, and that the activity of one minister might be measured by the fact that he had 2,900 pairs of gloves thus gathered.

Mr. United States.

LOCAL PLAYERS WILL WIN CUPS

BROWNELL AND SCHALLER ARE PLAYING FINALS.

WILL CONTEST 36 HOLES

They Played 18 This Morning.
Schaller in 83; Brown-nell 92.

Jansville golfers were jubilant this morning over the fact that both cups in the consolation event at the state tournament would come to Jansville. In the semi-finals yesterday afternoon both Schaller and Brownell won out, which left them in the finals today and clinched the cup question for Jansville.

Both of the boys have been playing good golf since the qualifying round and their games have been as good if not better than those put up by the contestants for the first cup. The affair was, that one of them dislaid only disappointment in the whole affair was, that one of them did not qualify for the championship cup and had a chance to play with the top notchers.

Little Interest
Very little interest has been taken in the tournament by the Milwaukee people. They are planning to devote their whole attention to the Country Club's open tournament in August and look upon the state event as a second-class affair.

The fact that there is not a Milwaukee player left in either event shows that the clubs outside of Milwaukee have a few good players. Although Milwaukee had twenty entries, none of them landed in the finals.

Small Gallery
Very little attention was paid to the players in the consolation event the gallery following Hibbard and Bull, who were fighting hard for victory and Pettit and Russell, who were having a hot contest. It finally ended by Pettit and Bull winning, which left Kenosha and Racine fighting for the first cup and Jansville sure of the second cups.

Albert Schaller in his match against Jacobs played an 83 round which is one below the score that took the cup into the qualifying round. In the semi-finals Schaller defeated Burke 4 up and 3 to play and Brownell defeated Kellogg 5 up and 3 to play.

The struggle today between Bull and Pettit and Schaller and Brownell is likely to cause considerable excitement. Bull and Pettit are both young players and will be strongly backed by their respective clubs.

Schaller Favorite.
In the consolation event Schaller is considered the favorite, although Brownell may be able to defeat him if he keeps his nerve. Schaller is a good match player and really more steady than Brownell.

Scores
Schaller's score with Jacobs in the semi-finals was as follows:
Al Schaller, Out—5, 5, 4, 1, 8, 4, 5, 4, 3-42. In—4, 4, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5, 3-41; 83.

F. W. Jacobs, Out—4, 5, 5, 5, 6, 6, 5, 4, 3-43. In—4, 6, 4, 5, 5, 5, 5, 3-43—85.

Schaller wins, 3 up and 1 to play; by holes played out.

J. P. Baker and Stewart McGiffin returned home yesterday and reported the meeting to be quite a success. The tournament next year will be held in Racine. There was a hot fight between Kenosha and Racine for the honor at the business meeting on Thursday evening. The vote was a tie for several ballots. It was then seven for Racine and seven for Kenosha. John Stevens of Appleton finally cast his vote for Racine and ended the contest.

Morning Scores
In the play on the first 18 holes, Schaller made it in 88 and Brownell in 92. They are finishing this afternoon.

Span Wires Are in Place as Far as Jackson Street—Progress of Grading.

Linemen in the employ of the Beloit, Delavan Lake and Jansville Electric line were engaged yesterday in stringing trolley wire through the city. The span wires are all in place as far as the Jackson street bridge and the trolley wire is being attached to them.

Grading Hurrying
The Hayes Bros. Co. is confident that the grading will be completed in the next two weeks. They are not rushing the work but are keeping ahead of the track laying and bridge building crew.

Weather Hinders
The wet weather has delayed the work greatly. They would have had the grading all completed before this time had they had decent weather. They hope to have the line ready for the cars by September first.

Crews at Work
The grading crews are now at work about three miles south of the city and the grading with the exception of a few stretches is completed up to that point.

Chief Hogan and Officer Brown grabbed a pair of horses and a surrey about one o'clock last night, that two well-known young people were out with. They were running the horses up and down the streets and were finally rounded up on River street. When the officers stopped the horses the two young men jumped out and ran. The young woman that was with them begged the chief to let her go. He told her to get out, all he wanted was the horses.

Picnic Date Set: The grocery-men's picnic from this city to Milwaukee will be held on August 7. On account of other excursions the date was changed from the fifth to the seventh.

STREET FAIR AN ASSURED FACT

GREAT OUT-DOOR CARNIVAL TO BEGIN AUGUST 18,

UNDER AUSPICES OF ELKS

All Kinds of Attractions and Amusements Will Make the Week
a Gala One.

Under the auspices of the local lodge of Elks, Jansville is to have its first street fair and carnival and the week beginning August 18 will be a unique one in the history of the city.

At a special meeting of the Elks held last evening, the street carnival proposition was presented by J. S. Bergler, general manager of the Morris & Berger Mighty Midway and Carnival company, and was enthusiastically accepted by the Elks although it represents an expenditure of about $5,000. This sum will be raised by popular subscription and the canvass of the city was begun today.

The value to the city of such a carnival is obvious. It will attract crowds from all of the surrounding country towns and will afford the merchants a splendid advertising opportunity. In addition to the street displays by the merchants there will be many special displays, twelve distinct shows will be going at once, there will be plenty of excellent music by a number of bands and the promises are good for one of the grandest expositions ever seen in this city.

Among the special attractions will be a gigantic production of the Pan-American Midway; the Streets of Cairo with their oriental theaters, fakirs, whirling dervishes, dancing girls, weird music, camels and donkeys; the hall of mysteries and fire dances; the streets of all nations, showing the costumes and pastimes of the people; the German village with Tyrolean singers, ladies' orchestra and band; the streets of India with sword fighters, magicians and theaters, high-grade canvas and platform shows and free exhibitions. Mr. Bergler's show will bring a company of about 300 people here.

nominated on about as many platforms. If I had the latter all before me it would not be difficult to copy from them pages of resolutions in which I never believed, and to which I never gave my assent. And yet I was not a hypocrite. At least I believe I was not a hypocrite.

"I voted as the great mass of voters do, on what seemed to me the great, broad, underlying issues of each campaign, with little attention to other subjects or minor planks of platforms. I have always been glad to be known as a Republican, yet I would not want to be called such if it implied that upon all declarations of a platform I was to be stopped from the right of private judgment.

"There must be such a thing as good standing in a political party coupled with the independence of free and honorable manhood. If there is not, I am sorry for popular institutions. Analyzing roughly, I should say that the tenets of a platform chiefly regarded are those which define the attitude of a party upon the mooted questions of difference between opposing political organizations. Resolves which do not relate to these, but to matters internal with the party itself, are looked upon as recommendations rather than absolute facts. There is no opportunity for an opposing vote upon these at the polls. Hence they are given little heed by the voter.

Party Tenets Greater Than Platforms

"Why, look at it! Four years ago the Democratic party of the state had an explicit plank in its platform in favor of a primary election law. The Republican party had not. Two years later the Republican party had such a plank and the Democratic party had no opportunity of voting against this proposition without abandoning their party. In 1900 the same was true of the Republican party. It is safe to say that neither the Democratic vote in 1898, nor the Republican vote in 1900 was affected by these circumstances.

State convention platforms have not heretofore been supposed to possess the awful sacredness with which it is sought now to invest them. When in 1877 the Republican state platform wobbled towards "greenbackism" almost embracing it, who was not proud of our Horace Rublee, when he boldly repudiated the cowardly shift and led the party to victory under the tocsin cry of sound money!

"I have, although an avowed Republican, claimed the liberty of independent judgment, not on details of platform alone. For instance, I have repeatedly opposed the action of my party in making nominations for judicial office and supported independent candidates. Nevertheless my position as a recognized Republican has been hitherto unimpaired.

National Issues Overshadow Isms.

"Two years ago when Governor La Follette entered upon his brilliant canvass of the state for the Republican cause I had the honor to be called upon to preside at the first meeting. It certainly did not occur to me that by accepting I would give my indorsement to a primary election law abolishing all causes and conventions or to the position that if the governor should be elected and the whole party would be bound to accept such a law without further question or debate.

"The great contest of Bryan and McKinley was on hand, and in this the governor and myself stood upon common and all-absorbing ground. I, of course, gave support to the whole ticket and gave it with great pleasure to Robert M. La Follette, but with never a moment's thought that I was hereby committing myself to his special views upon the subject of nominations for office.

"And so it must have been with thousands and tens of thousands of voters. There were greater things that filled men's minds.

The Courage of Honest Conviction

"I have therefore, believed, and still believe, that a bill for a primary election law must stand before the legislature on its merits; that it is the duty of every legislator when it comes before him carefully to investigate the subject, to examine the details of the proposition and to assure himself that it will be a practical useful measure before he gives it his support.

"My present conviction is that the scheme is practical only in a limited field where the offices to be filled are single or at most very few in number, and the candidates well known to the electors. Extended beyond this, it will, in my judgment, tend to stiffen and strengthen partisanship and bossism and to promote secret combines of political manipulation. I may be wrong in this. I lay no claim to infallibility, but I claim the right of my own thought and judgment.

"These being my views, you would not expect men to support the system notwithstanding the platform.

Conventions and Resolutions Clash

"Now, looking upon the party duty in the light that I have heretofore understood it, this would in no way impair my standing in the Republican party.

"But how is it now? It is upon the question that I seek your advice. "The last platform unequivocally declares that no person, no matter what his character, or his abilities, or record may be, holding these views, shall be eligible as a Republican candidate for United States senator.

"The governor in his speech of acceptance, says: 'The candidate who is not willing to be bound by the platform of the party has no moral or political right to accept the party nomination.'

"This refers to every detail of the platform—indeed, was especially intended to cover the primary election law plank.

"A little strange, you may say, that a section of the party which thinks so poorly of state conventions that it would abolish them altogether, should set so much store by its resolutions.

Where Do Republicans Stand?

"But if this is the law of the Republican party, where does it leave me and those who think with me? We are excluded from office and, by necessary implication, from any honors the party can bestow.

"In order to rehabilitate ourselves we are required to approve this very feature of the platform.

"I am no candidate for office, no aspirant for honors, but I do claim that in the party to which I belong I am entitled to equal rights. I do not claim any right to any man's vote, but I do claim my right to an equal footing with all other Republicans under the law of the party. I appeal to you as chairman of the state central committee. You have known me long and know my attitude.

"Am I entitled to recognition as a Republican in good standing, entitled as such to receive such honors or preferment within the party as my fellow citizens might choose to confer?

"If not, I have one other question: On what principle rests my obligation to support the ticket of the party?

"I have endeavored to state my position with candor, and beg to submit these questions to your candid judgment. It is not on my own account that I ask them, but for the thousands who occupy the same position I do.

Yours truly,
"F. C. WINKLER."

MINERS' AGENT PLEADS GUILTY

OTHER CASES ARE DROPPED

Promises by Men to Keep Within the Law Lead to an Order From the Court For Their Discharge From Custody.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 26.—John L. Gehr of Colorado, an organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, pleaded guilty to contempt of court after his case had been on hearing all day and many witnesses had testified regarding his speeches. He admitted using various expressions against the issuance of the injunction by Federal Judge Jackson.

Judge Jackson released eleven miners charged with contempt and agreed to rescind the warrant issued for the arrest of Secretary Wilson of the United Mine workers.

Consents to Release.

District Attorney Blizard stated there were eleven more cases pending, but if the accused would agree to refrain from further violations he would consent to their release on their own recognizance. The court agreed to this and they were released.

"Mother" Jones says she will not stop her work among West Virginia miners, but will try to observe the law. National Vice President Lewis is now in charge in West Virginia.

TO EVICT MINERS.

Men Notified to Return to Work or Quit Premises.

Charleston, W. Va., July 26.—Charleston is crowded with strikers from Loup creek, who are here to attend the trial of President Richards and others charged with having violated the injunctions issued by Federal Judge Keller.

The eviction of strikers occupying company houses is to commence Monday. This notice was posted at all mines in the Kanawha and New river fields:

"All persons desiring to work in the mines at the same place and under the conditions prevailing on June 7, 1902, must report to the mine boss ready for work Monday morning, July 28. All persons who refuse to work on that day must call at the office, settle their accounts, get their pay, if anything is due them, and quit the respective companies' premises."

MITCHELL IN CHARGE.

Returns to Wilkesbarre and Consults With Leaders.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 26.—President Mitchell returned to this city, was met by local leaders, and spent considerable time in consultation with them, getting reports of the conditions in different parts of the region.

Regarding the distribution of the relief funds he had nothing to say except that the plans were in the hands of the local and the district officers. The plan of the union is to give aid only to those strikers who are in direct need of food or clothing. The locals that have money are to be allowed to exhaust their treasuries before they get a portion of the fund.

There is bitter complaint. Many strikers want the money to be distributed share and share alike, but as $500,000 weekly would not suffice to keep the families of all the union officers cannot do it.

The first installment of the strike fund was received by the three anthracite districts. It is supposed to be the division of the $50,000 first received by Secretary Treasurer Wilson, of which the amounts to be divided are as follows: District No. 1, $28,500; district No. 7, $6,000; district No. 9, $17,500.

Tracklayers on Strike.

Centerville, Ia., July 26.—The strike of track layers on the Iowa & St. Louis railroad has gone into effect. The strikers demand fewer hours for the same pay.

WITH THE BOOKS.

Broadhurst's Retort.

George Broadhurst, the clever playwright, is remarkably quick at retort. On the eve of the first production of "The Wrong Mr. Wright," by Roland Reed, a dinner was given in his honor at which sat Mr. Reed and his daughter and the leading lady of the company, Isadore Rush, and her daughter. The manager of the company rose to propose a toast.

"Here's to Broadhurst, the Moses who we hope will lead us into the promised land of success."

"Moses, indeed!" said Broadhurst. "I suppose that's because I'm here among — Reeds and the Rushes."

Everybody's magazine.

Beautiful Lake Geneva.

A beautiful illustrated article in The Pilgrim for August is entitled "A Western Watering place." The "Place" is Lake Geneva and in the course of the article, the author, Milton Marks, says:

"Along the lake are two or three hotels which exist by the doctrine of the survival of the fittest, where others of their kind have from time to time disappeared—even as they, themselves, may disappear in another decade or two as the cordon of wealthy privacy is drawn more surely about the blue 'Imperial' lake.

"At very rare intervals a bit of woodland in its primitive state, unimproved and unmarred by buildings, still remains, but there is a fancied something in the bearing of every tree which says: 'I have a price upon my head.' At one point I was surprised to see, in a little grove, a small herd of cattle that were free to wander at will down to the water's edge.

The sight was most unusual in that place, and when my eyes first fell upon the creatures, I was almost inclined to think the scene sacrilegious until my fancy manufactured the illusion that they were some rare species, like the sacred cattle of Egypt. For what common cattle are privileged to graze upon land that will bring $1,000 an acre? I think I would not have been particularly astonished if the entomologist whom I saw a little farther down, wildly chasing with net in hand after some insect, had told me that the beetles he found were principally of the scarabee variety. Every foot of land along the twenty-four miles of shore is known and measured and bears its weight of choice value; and it must be only a matter of a few years when the exclusive, social insignificance of the term 'East End' shall be lost, as the west end passes into similar hands, as it is already rapidly doing."

Railways Benefitted by Competing Canals.

During the fifteen years in which improvements were being made on the River Elbe, in Bohemia, the river traffic, as a natural result of the deepening of its channels, increased fivefold. But the traffic on the competing railways increased still more largely, and the dividends on the main line, from Tepitz to Aussig, rose to 16 per cent. per annum.

Equally interesting and conclusive are some illustrations taken from experience of Germany. The canalization of the River Main from Mayence to Frankfurt was completed in the latter part of the year 1886. As a result of this improvement, which gave a channel vastly better and deeper than was before available, the river traffic showed an increase of 64 per cent. in 1887 and further gain of 42 per cent. in 1888.

Frankfort is abundantly supplied with railroads having among others an independent line on each bank of the Main all the way to Mayence. Did these roads go into bankruptcy or suffer serious falling off in their traffic? On the contrary, their business increased 36 per cent. in 1887 and an additional 58 per cent. in 1888.

The river traffic, which amounted to only 150,000 tons annually before the improvements were made, had increased to 700,000 tons in 1891, and to 1,693,112 tons in 1896, while the traffic by rail, which amounted to 930,000 tons in 1886, had risen to 1,639,229 tons in 1896, being nearly double what it was ten years before, when the railways had a practical monopoly of the freight traffic business of Frankfort.—S. A. Thompson, in The Engineering Magazine for July.

The August Atlantic is largely and seasonably a fiction number. Besides containing the continuation of the Baroness von Hutten's delightful story, "Our Lady of the Beches," it opens with a powerful "fisher" story by Norman Duncan, in the Fear of the Lord, and includes attractive and entertaining complete stories and sketches by Arthur Colton, Jack London, Alice Brown and Annie H. Donnell.

Samuel P. Verner describes that extraordinary and almost apocryphal race, The African Pygmies, and Leonidas Hubbard relates an adventurous visit to The Moonshiners at Home in their Tennessee haunts.

Entertaining literary contributions are also a noteworthy feature of the number. Edmund Gosse contributes a timely paper on The Revival of Poetic Drama; Martha Baker Dunn, a characteristically amusing study of The Browning Tonic; and Elizabeth P. Pennell unveils some secrets of her cookery Books, with especial reference to the historic Mrs. Glasse well known to fame (but falsely, as Mrs. Pennell claims) as the author of the immortal words—"First Catch Your Hare."

There are also valuable literary essays on Bert Harte and Edward Rowland Hill, and an editorial disquisition on The Short Story; what it is, what it means, and how to make it.

The "outdoor" paper for the month is a profoundly imaginative essay on The Desert by Verner Z. Reed, to be followed in September by a paper On Going into the Woods, by Eben Greenough Scott.

Reviews of Books New and Old, with especial reference to summer fiction, unusual poems by Harriet Prescott Spofford and Duncan C. Scott, and a lively Contributor's Club complete a brilliant and attractive summer number.

Mother Goose Revisited.

W. B. McIlarg, in Leslie's Monthly for August.

LITTLE TOMMY TITTMOUSE.

In that small house, scarce seen because of trees,
Lived Thomas Tittmouse—still remembered well;
I yet recall how often it befell
In days—far brighter, happier days than these—
I watched true Thomas resting at his ease.

Here where the hillside tumbles to the dell;
Faint odors of crushed grasses still I smell,
And memories fainter yet I strive to seize.

The neighbors asked him, passing sternly by,
"Thomas,"—or even, "Tom!"—is that your ditch?"

And Thomas, lifting a reluctant eye,
Would answer, peering from his grassy niche,
"Tis not; but hush! small trout are lying nigh."

Ah, Tom! I thought thee poor, but thou wert rich.

Seek Siberian Klondike.

Moscow, July 26.—European capitalists are financing a prospecting expedition which has gone to the most eastern point of Siberia on the coast of the Bering Sea. The district is said to be rich in gold and its geological formation to be the same as that of the Klondike.

Will Reside at Melbourne.

Melbourne, July 26.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain has informed Gov. Tennyson that it is not necessary for him to maintain both his Sydney and Melbourne residences as acting governor-general of Australia. Gov. Tennyson will, therefore, reside at Melbourne.

Discovers Solomon's Temple.

Vienna, July 26.—Dr. Sellin, a professor at the Vienna university, who is exploring Palestine in behalf of the imperial academy of sciences, has discovered the walls and gateway of the ancient temple of Solomon in the neighborhood of Janahah in Samaria.

Methodist Endowment Fund.

Nashville, Tenn., July 26.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church south it has been decided to endeavor to raise a $5,000,000 endowment fund, the interest of which is to go to superannuated ministers, widows and orphans.

Cloudburst in New York.

Dresden, N. Y., July 26.—Acres of crops were destroyed by a cloudburst and dwellings, barns and other buildings were washed away, and several miles of track of the New York Central were washed out. One house was carried into Seneca lake.

Remarkable Vitality.

Baltimore, Md., July 26.—Mrs. Cecilia M. Sullivan lived eighteen hours, part of which time she was conscious with one bullet wound through the heart, another that penetrated the stomach, liver and spleen, and one that grazed the heart.

Arrests Chinamen.

New York, July 26.—Inspector Jenkins has arrested twenty-nine Chinamen in Brooklyn who failed to produce evidence of their having legally entered the United States. The prisoners were taken while at work in various laundries.

Takes 5,000 Ballots.

Dallas, Tex., July 26.—The Democratic congressional convention for the Twelfth district has taken 5,500 ballots without choice. The balloting proceeds with good humor on all sides.

Building

Requires a foundation. That is just as true of the building up of the body as of the building of a house. The foundation of a strong body is a strong stomach. No man can be stronger than his stomach. A weak stomach means a weak man.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food which is eaten. Thus it builds up the body and restores strength in the only way known to Nature or to science—by digested and assimilated food.

"While living in Charlotte, N. C., your medicine cured me of asthma and nasal catarrh of ten years' standing," writes J. L. Lundsen, Esq., of 221 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga. "At that time life was a burden to me, and after spending hundreds of dollars under numerous doctors I was dying by inches. At I commenced your treatment I was well of both troubles, and in six months I weighed 170 pounds, and was in perfect health. I have never felt the slightest symptom of either since. Am sixty-five years old and in perfect health, and weigh 160 pounds. No money could repay you for what you did for me. I would not return to the condition I was in, in October, 1874, for Rockefeller's wealth."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery," when a laxative is required.

Why.... Women Join Clubs

THEY were talking about women's clubs. "Pooh!" said the young man. "My dear fellow, I wouldn't say 'pooh!' retorted the old doctor. "Women's clubs are an ever increasing factor, and we can't afford to ignore them."

"If ever a wife of mine joins a club," the young man began savagely, but he stopped, squelched by the look of utter scorn he received from the girl who earned her own living.

"If ever I marry," the girl remarked in distinct tones, "one of the first things I intend to do is to join a club—a club that will keep me well up on the subjects of the day and won't let me degenerate into a mere hausfrau like most of the married women of my acquaintance."

"I suppose you will imitate Mrs. Blinks," answered the young man indignantly. "The home runs itself, the three children go unwashed and in rags, and Blinks says he hasn't had a decent meal since his wife joined her three new clubs. By the way, that makes seven to her credit now."

"She must have the club mania," said the observant woman thoughtfully. "Yes," in answer to the looks of astonishment of the other three, "there is such a thing. One club leads to another, and the woman who starts joining them will never cease until she owns a string of medals or certificates of membership. But seriously," she went on, "I have been studying the all absorbing question, Why do women join clubs? and I'm about as far from arriving at any one conclusion as you are probably. I really think the main reason is because the women are unhappy in their home life and seek a change. Some of them are childless; others are neglected by their husbands. Now, when a man finds his home life a failure he simply throws himself more and more into his business and finds a relief in the excitement of earning dollars. The woman tries to find the same excitement and interest in her clubs."

"I think women's clubs a good thing, for my part," said the old doctor. "In the old days when a woman was unhappy or fancied herself to be she took to herself mysterious ailments, tampered with drugs or cures or else worked herself into a morbid frame of mind reading novels. Now, thanks to the clubs, she has no time for that sort of thing. Her mind is filled with wholesome interest, and she turns into a fine, well developed, philanthropic woman."

"The woman in the towns or small cities appreciates her club most," said the observing woman. "It gives her a chance to enjoy over a sociable cup of tea a respite from the cares and drudgery of a small household. It gives her an opportunity of making friends."

"Ah, that's the side of club life I'm in favor of," interrupted the girl—"the side that increases social intercourse. Why shouldn't unmarried women who have to earn their own living have clubs like those of men? Why shouldn't there be athletic clubs for women, for instance, where they might meet in an atmosphere of good fellowship? Why should women's clubs be solely pink teas where papers are read at one and chunks of solid information dug out of encyclopedias and doled out to the listeners? Think what a boon a few clubs on the order of those for men would be to girls who come to a strange town to earn their own living—girls who don't know a soul, who have been used to their own homes and who have to put up with boarding houses and the like! Yes, indeed, women's clubs are a good thing, I say; only they might be made a great deal better."

GRACE ELMORE.

She Went Crazy.

Literary work in connection with women's clubs is said to have caused the insanity of a lady who went crazy recently and had to be sent to an asylum. Clubwomen, let this be an awful warning to you to stop writing and reading those dreadful club papers!

Plala Living in Scandinavia.

Dyspepsia would no longer be the national disease in America if the people of this country would adopt a plain diet similar to that of Norway, and Sweden. "Gout is unknown among the Swedes and Norwegians, and the rosy cheeks and clear complexions of the young people of those countries are the result of the simple food the children eat," says a United States counsel in a Norwegian city. Americans are being forced by the high price of provisions to the same conclusion.

Divide Up Their Gloves.

Major Dan Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the house, who lost his right arm in the union service, and Gen. Hooker, who parted with his left arm in the Confederate service, are always well supplied with gloves. When one buys a pair he gives the odd glove to the other.

Mail Carried by Steamers.

A transatlantic steamer, carrying what is called "a full mail," usually brings 200,000 letters and 300 sacks of newspapers for London, to say nothing of the 500 and odd sacks for other places.
